COMPENSATION:

Performers will be allowed to accept tips as compensation for their talent.

Performers will be allowed to erect a booth/encampment where they may sell promotional materials and interact with patrons. Booth fees will be offset as part of the performer's compensation for performances rendered. One 10'x10' space will be granted per contract. Additional space needed must be approved in advance by GJRF. Performers are allowed to sell CDs, DVDs, and other promotional materials. Prices must be clearly marked. Sale of merchandise must not interfere with or distract from other performances. Performers may organize their own promotional material in collaboration with GJRF and provide GJRF with digital images, hard copy photos and band profiles to help with the promotion including possible inclusion on GJRF's web site, broadcast media and print media promotions. GJRF will give notice of the event to as many media and event guides as possible.

If you are asking for additional compensation, please list amount and terms here:

ADDITIONAL GUIDELINES:

All performers must conduct themselves in a professional manner and costume is required. All performers must comply with appropriate attire in association with the Renaissance and/or fantasy themes of the faire.

All performers are required to supply their own props, costumes, booths or tents, tables and chairs, and other accommodations. GJRF provides booth/stage space only.

If applicant is accepted, a contract will be issued.
